FAIL IN ATTEMPT TO STEAL HORSE

Robbers Cut Horse Loose, But it Broke Away, so Casper Johnson Believes.

FOUND IN LOT THIS MORNING

First Attempt to Rob His Barn Was Thwarted Last Fall—Keeps Valuable Horses.

The second unsuccessful attempt in the last few months to steal horses from the barn of Casper Johnson, living four miles west of the city, came last night, when thieves, so it is believed, broke into the barn, led out a horse, which escaped from them later and came back to the barn lot. The first attempt to raid the Johnson barn was thwarted last fall when the robbers were frightened away by gun shots.

The members of the Johnson family were not awakened during the night by any unusual occurrence, but they have every reason to believe that an attempt was made to steal at least one of Mr. Johnson's valuable horses. Mr. Johnson arose early this morning and found his most valuable horse, one which is very high-spirited, racing about in the barn lot. It was with some difficulty that he finally caught it. He then found that the horse wore its halter but that the strap, which held it in its stall in the barn, had been cut with a sharp knife. Later investigation showed that someone had broken into the barn.

Mr. Johnson thoroughly believes that someone entered the barn, cut the horse loose and attempted to lead it away, but that it would not go. It is one of the best bred horses which he owns and is easily excited. He declares that he believes that the thieves were unable to handle the horse and fearing they would arouse someone in the house, they had given up the robbery and left the horse in the barn lot.

Last fall, while Mr. Johnson was away from home, showing horses at a fair in an adjoining county, an attempt was made to rob the barn. It so happened that the hired man was at home and frightened the robbers away with shots from a rifle. One of them was seen in the barn and another was seen fleeing across an open space near the barn, finally disappearing in the woods. The hired man shot at them, but none of his aims was true.

Mr. Johnson breeds and raises good horses of both the draft and light harness class. He always shows his high-class animals here at the horse show and county fair and generally makes a showing at many fairs in adjoining counties during the fall. He never fails to carry away many of the ribbons. For that reason he always has some valuable horses in his barn, which, it is believed, causes thieves to come his way.

HONOR AT LAST GIVEN.

Rush county horseman and lovers of the harness horse performers are glad that Indianapolis has been made a member of the Grand Circuit. Indiana is one of the great race horse centers of the United States and should have been so recognized and complimented long ago with a membership to that great racing body.

TO CONFER DEGREE HERE

Modern Woodmen Team of Connersville Will be Here.

The degree team of the local council of Modern Woodmen has been invited to Rushville to confer the two degrees of the order upon a class of twenty-five candidates on February 8, says the Connersville Examiner. The members of the staff feel highly honored by the invitation and will make efforts to do the work in such a way as to add credit to the name of the team.

FINDS RELATIVES AFTER MANY YEARS

Charles Bock, Gwynneville Merchant, Left Orphan at 2 Years of Age, is Finally Rewarded.

MAKES DISCOVERY BY CHANCE

Charles Bock, at Gwynneville business man, has just passed through an unusual experience, according to the Morristown Sun, which says in part:

Mr. Bock is of German parentage, and was left an orphan when two years of age. His only relative left was an eight-year-old half sister. Both children were adopted by separate families. The girl was adopted by a family by the name of Mummie. The family that adopted Mr. Bock immediately moved to north of Elwood. After he had become older he gained the impression that the Mummie family had also relocated. Anyway as the years passed he made a constant effort to find his half sister. Last week to his surprise his life's search was rewarded, when his adopted mother found an old letter dated April 15, 1878, from the Mummie family which led to the discovery. His half sister died at Edwardsville, but left two children, Earl and Henrietta Noutrie. They are both employed and wrote Mr. Bock. He expects to go there as soon as he can arrange to get away.

GET NO WORD FROM MARION

Local Men do Not Know Whether $30,000 Was Raised to Locate Local Concern.

BELIEVED THAT THEY FAILED

The time for the Marion Commercial club to raise thirty thousand dollars to buy preferred stock in the Scott-Madden Iron Works, they in return to combine the plant here with the one in Keokuk, Iowa, in Marion, expired Saturday night, but the local managers have received no word of either their success or failure. Up until a late hour this afternoon the local men in connection with the concern had heard nothing from Marion. The Marion papers of Saturday contained nothing concerning the deal and it is generally supposed that they failed. Last week it was understood by the men here in touch with the situation that twenty thousand dollars of the amount had been raised and that they anticipated raising the last ten thousand with ease.

G. A. R. INSTALLATION.

The G. A. R. will install their newly-elected officers Wednesday afternoon. A good attendance is desired.

BABY FALLS AND IS NEARLY KILLED

Youngest Child of Mr. and Mrs. Tom J. Geraghty of New York City Tumbles From Fire Escape.

UNCONSCIOUS FOR 13 HOURS

Skilled Physician in Finally Able to Restore Child to Health—Had Brain Concussion.

That Mr. and Mrs. Tom J. Geraghty of New York City, once residents of this city, have just passed through a very trying ordeal, is the contents of a message sent to relatives and friends here concerning their baby boy, Maurice. He fell off a fire escape at their home in New York to a cement court, twelve feet below, and suffered a concussion of the brain. For thirteen hours, he hovered between life and death and little hope was entertained for his recovery. The attending physician, however, was able to restore him to life and he is once more able to be up and about the house.

According to the word received here, Maurice, the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Geraghty, who is not yet two years old, was playing about the house, when he discovered that the door to the fire escape had been left open. It was later learned that the wash woman had neglected to close it. The child ran out on to the fire escape and fell into the court below, his head striking on the hard cement.

The physician who first saw the child, gave no hope for his recovery and believed it would be only a matter of time until he would die. The parents were almost frantic, according to the message received here, and the best physician in New York from the St. Luke hospital was summoned. He remained with the young boy for thirteen hours, during which time he was unconscious. The doctor was finally able to restore him to health and today he is as well as ever.

Mr. Geraghty, who is employed on the New York Herald, and who was formerly editor of the Daily Republican, gave up his work for the time and, together with his wife, remained by the baby's bedside continually.

HORSE REPORTED TO BE STARVING

Rumored That Alex Williams, Mayor of Jersey City, Has Animal That is Receiving Bad Treatment.

THE POLICE MAY INVESTIGATE

Complaint was made to City Marshal Jesse Harlow today that Alex Williams, mayor of Jersey City, was gradually starving his horse. It was reported that Williams was treating the animal cruelly, giving it only a small amount of feed and not providing sufficient shelter from the cold. The horse was said to be down and not able to rise. Last night the barn door was left open and this morning the animal was covered with frost. The city marshal will probably investigate and if conditions are as bad as reported he will kill the horse.

HOLD THIRD MAN IN ROBBERY CASE

Cleveland, O., Police Arrest Dan Williams of Greenfield For Complicity in New Palestine Raid.

DETECTIVE TO RETURN HIM

Is Implicated by Vance Deery Who Confessed and Caused Arrest of Cordie Martin.

Dan Williams, twenty-two years old, of Greenfield, Ind., has been arrested in Cleveland, Ohio, on an indictment charging him with conspiracy in the robbery of the New Palestine bank last month, and Detective Manning has gone to the Ohio city to get him, according to an Indianapolis dispatch. A telegram was received by Captain of Detectives Holtz, saying that Williams would return without requisition papers.

The arrest of Williams followed a confession made last week by Vance Deery, one of the robbers, who also implicated and caused the arrest of Cordie Martin, another Greenfield man for alleged connection in the case.

According to the detective department, Deery said Williams, under original plans for the robbery, was to be a party in the crime. Deery said he met Martin and Williams at the Traction Terminal Station the night of the robbery, and the three were expecting to take a late car for New Palestine. He said Martin and Williams were engaged in a controversy as to who should carry a revolver in Martin's possession. Deery says he decided he would not participate in the "job" and left his companions. Later he returned and found Martin alone. The two agreed to take the trip, he said. It was arranged, however, that Williams was to receive one-third of the loot as "hush" money. Deery says.

Following the robbery, according to Deery's confession to the detectives, he received $2,100 from the $6,416 stolen and Martin received the balance and promised to divide with Williams.

Capt. Holtz and Detectives Simon and Manning, who arrested the men, believe they can obtain a confession from Williams upon his return here.

The robbery was one of the cleverest brought to the attention of the local detectives in recent years. Martin, it is said "worked" the combination on three steel doors of the safe and obtained the money. Upon leaving, he closed and locked all three doors, the police say.

Lavish expenditures of money aroused the suspicion of the detectives who were watching Deery and Martin and they were arrested. Thirty dollars in pennies was recovered from under the doorstep of a vacant house in Irvington, where the men are said to have divided the plunder. The coins were done up with wrappers bearing the stamp of the New Palestine bank.

MARRIAGE LICENSE.

A marriage license has been issued to Frank Hatfield and Miss Sallie Nixon. They were married Saturday evening by the Rev. A. W. Jamieson at the United Presbyterian parsonage.

CONTINUE TO ASSIST.

Connersville News: Rev. E. C. Myers, who has been assisting Rev. S. A. Sherman in the protracted meetings at the First Baptist church, returned home to Rushville Saturday and filled his regular appointments there Sunday. He will be here, however, all next week, or until the meetings close.

HEAR FAINT ECHO OF ITA

Theater Manager Busy Forwarding Mail to Her at Madison.

Grand M. Carr, has done little else today other than forward letters, addressed to Ita, who, together with the company, has gone to Madison for a three day's engagement. Letters were received by him from New Castle and Richmond. Yesterday he was busy answering telephone calls from local people who wanted to put a question to Ita. She refused to answer by phone but promised to answer all communications, addressed to her. The company will appear in Connersville at a later date.

BEGIN ERECTION OF PARK ADDITION

Wilk & Redman Have Completed Foundation For Extra Building at Furniture Factory.

TURN DOWN UNUSUAL OFFER

The contracting firm of Wilk & Redman has started work on the new addition to the Park furniture factory which will be built. Already the foundation has been laid and the structure above ground will be started at once. It will be eighty-six feet wide, one hundred and twelve feet and ten inches long and two stories high with a basement below the ground. The factory owners were compelled to build the addition on account of increasing business.

That Wilk & Redman are becoming famed far and wide as contractors of every class and description is evidenced by the fact that they have a communication from the board of county commissioners at Keokuk, Iowa, asking them to come there and tear down the county jail, as plans have been made to build a new one. The firm has all of the contracts it can well fill now and was compelled to turn down the offer. They had the contract for raising the stack at the city water, light and power plant.

APPOINTED OIL INSPECTOR HERE

C. W. Miles of Raleigh Drew Good Plum From The State—Four Cities in His District.

TO TAKE OFFICE FEBRUARY 1

C. W. Miles of Raleigh has been appointed deputy oil inspector by State Oil Inspector James H. Fry for Connersville, Brookville, Liberty and Rushville. Mr. Miles is a plumber in Raleigh and will continue to run his shop even after he takes his position as oil inspector, which will be February 1.

Besides Mr. Miles' appointment, there were forty-four other oil inspectors named for the various parts of the State. In some places the Democratic party has been split wide open because of the bitterness with which the applications for places were urged by friends of the candidates.

It is thought Mr. Miles had no opponent for the place.

DELIVERED SERMON.

The Rev. V. W. Tevis preached last night at the Grand Avenue M. E. church in Connersville.

IS HERALDED AS HERO OF THE AGE

Major in U. S. Signal Corps Donates Multiplex Telephone System, Which is Invented.

ASKS NO PROFITS FOR ITS USE

Comes as Relief to Users of Party Lines—Two Conversations at Same Time.

The annoyance incident to "party lines" is known to all users of telephone lines though they serve many good purposes. Relief seems to be in sight for the public and as the public is protected against monopoly in the use of the device which promises relief the cost may be little if any greater if generally adopted.

Major Squier of the United States army has invented a device which is explained as follows in a dispatch:

It is not often that the discoverer of a valuable invention is willing to forego all the profits that may accrue but such an instance has been found in the signal corps of the United States Army in Major C. Squier and his multiplex telephone system. By the use of the Squier patent from two to ten conversations can be held at the same time over the same wire. The government patents safeguard the appropriation of this invention by any corporation or individual, yet all are welcome to the free use of it. Major Squier does not believe the scope of his discovery will be appreciated for some time, but says that eventually it will mean the saving of millions of dollars in construction and possibly a proportionate amount to telephone users.

If the device will not do what is claimed for it surely many wires and cables can be dispensed with so that it will be in the interest of line owners as well as patrons that it come into general use.

FILL UP OFFICES IN NEW BUILDING

Wallace Morgan and Samuel L. Trabue, Attorneys, Move Into Two Suites of Rooms.

CUTTER STRUCTURE FINISHED

Wallace Morgan, who has been in the law firm of Innis and Morgan for years, has moved his office into the back suite of rooms on the second floor of the new Cutter building in East Second street. Mr. Innis will remain in the office over the Peoples National bank, which the firm has occupied for several years. Samuel Trabue has moved into the front suite of rooms in the same building.

The building is a credit to Rushville as an ideal situation for offices. A stairway between that and the new Rushville National bank building leads up to the offices. Each suite contains two rooms that are modern in every particular. They are supplied with electricity and gas and sky lights afford plenty of light. Aldridge's grocery store occupies the lower floor of the same building.

THE WEATHER

Fair tonight. Warmer in central portion tonight. Tuesday fair and warmer.

DO YOU GET YOUR MONEY'S WORTH?

Every day buying is becoming more of a science. To buy the right kind of goods at the right prices requires discrimination and care—anyone can rush out and buy any old kind of goods from the first dealer he finds.

Some people fail to get the most for their money when it comes to buying their supplies, but are very particular about unimportant matters.

A great help in this direction are the advertisements of the merchants. Before visiting the stores one can make the task comparatively easy by securing a great deal of information from the announcements of the dealers.

Then shopping can be more intelligently done.

A dealer's sins will sooner or later find him out if he makes a misstatement in his advertisement, and you may depend upon it that he can not keep it up for any great length of time.

It will lose him trade.

The dealer can not afford to misrepresent. He tells the public exactly what he has to sell and explains in honest terms the value of his goods. He is worthy of your confidence and can be depended upon implicitly. This dealer regularly makes his announcements through the columns of the newspapers.

Advertising is the searchlight which reveals true character and only the truth alone can stand regular advertising.

It will pay you to read the advertisements.

TEACHERS OF PATRIOTISM.

The Commander of the Indiana Division of the Sons of Veterans, Mr. Joseph Sego, of Valparaiso, Ind., has inaugurated a campaign of education and organization. He says that the proper education of the people in their duty of patriotic devotion to their country will best pave the way for patriotic organization. He believes that every patriotic address should contain the basis principles of patriotism and good government; should outline the ways and means by which these principles and policies may be perpetuated and make due mention of the valiant services of our soldier heroes, both living and dead. He believes that this can be accomplished with a Speakers' Bureau, banding together the best speakers in the Sons of Veterans and the G. A. R. to secure and maintain concerted action along patriotic lines, and to outline a few of the things that are to be said and done—especially on Memorial Day, Lincoln's Birthday, Flag Day and other patriotic occasions, and even on the Fourth of July and Washington's Birthday.

With this idea in view he has appointed the following committee (one of which is a G. A. R. man) to organize and perfect the Speakers' Bureau:

Newton J. McQuire, Chairman,

1001 Law Building, Indianapolis, Ind.
Lawrence A. Handley, Richmond, Ind.
George W. Kreitenstein, Terre Haute, Ind.
Le Grang T. Meyer, Hammond, Ind.

The committee is organized and doing business and circulars have already been issued to all the Camps and Posts in the State. We give you below the contents of these circulars in condensed form as follows:

It was a hundred years after the landing of the Mayflower at Plymouth Rock that the great sculptor St. Gaudens chisled from marble the most striking characteristic of all his ideal statues—"The Puritan."

It was a hundred years after the Declaration of Independence that the Sons of the Revolution was organized.

It was on the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln that American patriotism first burst forth in all its splendor in an effort to really enlighten the world as to his greatness of character and wonderful achievements.

It may be a hundred years after the surrender at Appomattox before it becomes fashionable to belong to the Sons of Veterans, or at least before we reach the zenith of our power as an organization. However, the time has about half expired, nevertheless we already have an organization of 40,000 members who do not believe in waiting until the things that the Union Soldier has done and stood for has been swallowed up and lost sight of in the rush and hurry of an era of Commercialism. We believe that we should not wait until they have all answered the last roll call to sing their praises. We believe that now is the time to defend and uphold the principles for which they fought and to perpetuate their deeds of valor and heroism, as well as after they are gone. We do not believe in keeping the Alabaster boxes of our love and tenderness sealed until our fathers are dead. Post mortem kindnesses do not cheer the troubled spirit. Flowers on the coffin cast no fragrance over life's weary way. But knowledge that there is a strong organization of Sons of Veterans in every locality, well established and up and doing, would be a source of comfort to our fathers, both here and hereafter. We want it understood that the Sons of Veterans should not and would not succeed the Grand Army of the Republic, except as the teachers of patriotism and good government. It is true that the Grand Army of the Republic had no predecessor, and the organization as such should have no successor. It is also true that it is the policy of the Sons of Veterans not to detract one iota from the halo of glory which the smoke of battle has cast around the Union Soldier. On the other hand, we are organized to see that the principles and policies of government established by their heroic deeds should live after them and should not crumble to pieces and perish with the men who made them.

We desire to announce to all Patriotic Societies and to the general public that you are welcome to call upon our Speakers' Bureau for speakers on all patriotic occasions. Correspond with the chairman of the committee.

Should you desire a Camp of Sons of Veterans in your town let some patriotic citizen write the State Commander and see how quick he will get busy. We have a paid organizer in the field and we invite you to make use of him. He will come and assist you in organizing a new Camp or in building up the membership of an old Camp. If you want to start something, write to Joseph Sego, Valparaiso, Indiana.

If you are suffering from biliousness, constipation, indigestion, chronic headache, invest one cent in a postal card, send to Chamberlain Medicine Co., Moines, Iowa, with your name and address plainly on the back, and they will forward you a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. JAMES E. MARTINE

Jersey Candidate Has Clear Lead in Senatorial Contest.

Trenton N. J. Jan. 23.—James E. Martine will almost certainly be elected United States senator on the first ballot in the joint session of the New Jersey legislature Wednesday. The senate and the house of assembly will ballot separately for a successor to John Kean, and this vote will be announced at the joint session. It is generally conceded that Mr. Smith has lined up against him more than forty-one members, or a majority of the senators and assemblymen.

Three men were blown to pieces when a powder mill in Fayville, Ill., blew up.

Elgin, Ill., has adopted the commission form of government by a majority of 840 votes.

James H. Fry, Indiana state oil inspector, has announced the appointment of forty-five deputy inspectors.

N. C. Jensen and three children were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the Jensen residence at Iceland, Minn.

Street riots which occurred at Hankow necessitated foreign intervention and resulted in the killing of eight Chinese and the injury of many others.

W. J. Bryan has again taken a hand in politics and is engaged in an effort to insure the nomination of a progressive Democrat for the presidency in 1912.

On account of the spread of bubonic plague at Pekin, the diplomats have closed the legation quarter and the Chinese will probably close the European quarter.

The great oil fire at Potrero Del Llano, Mexico, which threatened the destruction of the big well of the Mexican Eagle Petroleum company, has been extinguished. It is estimated that 500,000 barrels of oil were destroyed.

Henry Silver, a former member of the staff of Punch, who died December 3, left a fortune of nearly $6,000,000.

RUSSIA'S JESTER.

Balakireff Is the Joe Miller of the Muscovites.

HIS WIT TICKLES THE BEAR.

He Was the Court Fool That Many a Time Braved the Anger of Peter the Great—His Miracle of the Sword and a Wondrous Deed of Daring.

Every nation has its typical jester, around whom crystallize all the floating stories of a people. Thus England has its Joe Miller, Germany its Till Eulenspiegel, Italy its Punchinello, the orient its Nasreddin el Khoja and Russia its Balakireff. Like Joe Miller, the last was a real character, though not all the jokes credited to him were his own. Some were inventions of a later age; others were borrowed from the past. He shares the credit for many of the latter with Joe Miller and Eulenspiegel.

History records that Balakireff was the favorite jester of Peter the Great. Tradition represents him as the constant companion of that czar, frequently exercising his wit at royal expense. One day, for example, a cousin of his had fallen under the czar's displeasure and was sentenced to death. Balakireff undertook to obtain a reprieve. The czar guessed his errand even before he opened his mouth.

"No," he cried. "Tis no use your coming here. I swear that I will not grant what you are going to ask."

Balakireff dropped at once to his knees. "Peter Alexeyevich," he cried, "I pray you, put to death that scamp of a cousin of mine!"

Peter, thus caught in his own trap, had no choice but to laugh and send a pardon to the culprit.

On another occasion Balakireff asked that he might be enrolled among his master's domestic guards. Peter consented for the sake of the joke, but warned his jester that death was the penalty if any officer of the guards absented himself from his post or mislaid his sword. Then to test the volunteer he sent him up a flagon of wine to "moisten his commission." Balakireff, as was expected, drank to the intoxicating point. While he was sleeping off his debauch the czar himself crept into the room and carried off his sword from the scabbard. Balakireff, though badly scared, on awaking made shift to replace the missing weapon with his own wooden imitation of the guardsmen's sword. He was called to parade next morning, when Peter feigned hot indignation at the untidiness of one of the guards. "Captain Balakireff," he cried at last, "draw your sword and cut off the head of that sloven!"

Balakireff cast his eyes up to heaven. "Oh, merciful God," he prayed, "grant that my sword may turn into wood before I use it on one of my own fellow soldiers!"

And, lo, when he unsheathed it the blade stood revealed as a wooden one. Peter laughed heartily at the knave's presence of mind and restored him to favor.

A more serious offense resulted in the banishment of the jester. "Never dare to appear again on Russian soil!" stormed the emperor. Judge then of Peter's surprise when, a week later, he beheld his old favorite coolly driving a cart past the palace.

"How dare you disobey me?" shouted the enraged monarch. "Did I not forbid you ever to show yourself on Russian soil?"

"Nay," replied Balakireff, "I have not disobeyed you. This is not Russian soil."

"How say you—not Russian soil?"

"Truly not. This cartload of earth on which I am sitting is Swedish soil."

I dug it up in Finland only the other day."

Again the czar laughed uproariously and readmitted his buffoon to favor. Some historians add that when he heard the excuse he said, "If Finland be Swedish soil now it shall be Russian before long," a threat he was not slow to fulfill.

This story, however, was an old one long before the time of Balakireff. It forms the twenty-seventh adventure of Till Eulenspiegel, who is reputed to have died in 1350. Having offended the Duke of Lüneburg, Till was "forbidden the land." He purchased a shilling's worth of earth to fill his cart with, and, being duly challenged by the duke, he answered:

"My gracious lord, I am not in your land, but in mine own, wherein I do sit. I bought it of a boor for a shilling. And rightfully could he sell it, for from his forefathers he inherited it. So is this truly my land."

At the close of one of Czar Peter's campaigns Balakireff overheard some Russian officers boasting of exploits they had performed.

"Nay," he cried, "I can tell a better story than any of you." And, being pressed for the story, he continued:

"Never have I liked this modern way of fighting all in a body together. Surely it would be more manly for each to stand by himself. Therefore went I out alone in search of adventures. One day while reconnoitering near the enemy's outposts I espied a Swedish soldier lying on the ground. Before he could rise and give the alarm I rushed upon him and with one blow from my sword cut off his right foot."

"You fool!" cried one of his auditors. "Why did you not cut off his head?"

"So would I have done," retorted Balakireff, "except that somebody else had already done it."—Washington Star.

NOT A GAME OF CHANCE.

The Jury Decided That Seven-up Was Purely Scientific.

One of Mark Twain's old time stories concerned the game of seven-up, or old sledge. Some Kentucky boys were arrested for playing this game under the usual charge of playing a game of chance. When they were brought before the judge their lawyer claimed that this game was not a game of chance, but was a game of science. The court, puzzled, asked for a suggestion, and the lawyer declared that if a jury of six gamblers well acquainted with the game in a scientific way and six deacons be impaneled with a pack of cards their decision ought to be determinative. So the story goes:

"There was no disputing the fairness of the proposition. Four deacons and the two dominies were sworn in as the 'chance' jurymen, and six inveterate old seven-up professors were chosen to represent the 'science' side of the issue. They retired to the jury room.

"In about two hours Deacon Peters sent into court to borrow $3 from a friend. In about two hours more Dominie Miggles sent into court to borrow a 'stake' from a friend. During the next three or four hours the dominie and the other deacons sent into court for small loans.

"The rest of the story can be told briefly. About daylight the jury came in, and Deacon Job, the foreman, read the following verdict:

"We, the jury in the case of the commonwealth of Kentucky versus John Wheeler et al., have carefully considered the points of the case and tested the merits of the several theories advanced and do hereby unanimously decide that the game commonly known as old sledge, or seven-up, is eminently a game of science and not of chance. In demonstration whereof it is hereby and herein stated, iterated, reiterated, set forth and made manifest that during the entire night the 'chance' men never won a game or turned a jack, although both feats were common and frequent to the opposition, and furthermore in support of this our verdict we call attention to the significant fact that the 'chance' men are all broke and the 'science' men have got the money. It is the deliberate opinion of this jury that the 'chance' theory concerning seven-up is a pernicious doctrine and calculated to inflict untold suffering and pecuniary loss upon any community that takes stock in it."

GUMDROPS OUT OF DATE.

Eskimos Prefer Everlasting Chewing Gum, Skipper Reports.

Dr. Cook, whose claim to having discovered the north pole ruffled the temper of Lieutenant Peary, said he took a barrel of gumdrops with him to the arctic because the Eskimos would do anything for three or four of the confections. There is now evidence that chewing gum has gumdrops beaten to a frazzle.

Such is the opinion of Captain John Backlund of the trading schooner Volante, which arrived at Seattle from a trip to the extreme north of the continent with $300,000 worth of arctic furs.

Captain Backlund took north 300 tons of general merchandise to trade with the natives, including everything from sewing machines to delicatessen. The sticks of chewing gum were the most valuable asset of all for filling the hold with ermine, sable, fox and bear skins.

"What appealed to the Eskimos," explained the captain, "was that, while a gumbdrop was consumed in a few moments, a wad of chewing gum lasts practically forever and can be used turn and turn about by the whole family." The gum brought more than its weight in gold.

AMERICA LEADS IN DEATH'S TOLL

Twenty-Nine Thousand Nine Fatalities In Twenty Years.

THE AVERAGE FATALITY RATE

Against a Rate of 3.13 in This Country Is Opposed a Rate of Only 1.19 in the United Kingdom, Our Miners Being Shown to Be in Greater Danger Than Those of Any Other Country on the Globe.

Washington, Jan. 23.—More than 29,000 fatal accidents occurred in the coal mines of North America in the twenty years ended with 1908, according to a report of the bureau of labor. In the decade ending with 1906 the average fatality rate in North America was 3.14 per 1,000, which was higher than the fatality rate in any other important coal field in the world. In the United Kingdom it was 1.19 per 1,000 men; in Austria, 1.35; in France, 1.81, and in Prussia, 2.13.

The total production of coal in 1909 in Indiana was 14,834,259 short tons, having a spot value of $15,154,681—a new record in production, the previous maximum output, that of 1907, being exceeded by nearly $50,000 short tons.

According to James Epperson, state mine inspector, the number of men killed in the coal mines of Indiana during 1909 was 50, an increase of 5 from 1908. There were 1,079 men injured, eight of the accidents resulting in permanent disability; 525 more were of a serious character, and 546 were minor. Of the 50 men killed, 25 met death by falls of rock or coal in rooms and gangways, and 237 others were injured from the same cause; 4 deaths and 381 injuries were caused by mine cars; 3 men were killed and 25 injured by windy shots and powder explosions; shaft accidents killed 3 and injured 9; gas and dust explosions killed 4 and injured 36; 8 deaths and 301 injuries were attributed to miscellaneous causes.

Mr. Epperson also reports that during 1909 there were 18,908 men employed in the coal mines of Indiana. There were 292,285 tons mined for each life lost, and the death rate per thousand men employed was 2.64, against 273,664 tons mined for each fatality and a death rate of 2.45 per thousand in 1908.

In the period of sixteen years for which the causes of the accidents in the coal mines of Indiana have been reported, 453 men have been killed and 4,075 injured.

TWO SLAIN

West Virginia Farm Feud Ends In Double Tragedy.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 23.—The bodies of J. L. Nickell, aged fifty-two, a carpenter and contractor, and his son-in-law, Stephen Evans, aged twenty-six, were found riddled with bullets in the barnyard of W. E. Eads, at Rifles Crossing, W. Va. The men were killed in broad daylight within a short distance of their home. No one has been found who saw the shooting, but the shots were heard. Nickell was evidently running away from his assailant. His body was found about 200 yards from where he had been shucking corn. He had fallen face downward.

W. M. K. Eads of Lowell, W. Va., is under arrest. Evidence against him is circumstantial. J. L. Nickell formerly lived on the land where the shooting occurred and rented from Eads. About three months ago the house was burned and Nickell and his son-in-law, Evans, moved away. Nickell had a corn crop on the Eads farm. It appears that bad blood had existed between Eads and the murdered men for some time.

WORKED ADDING MACHINE

Alleged Defaulter Tells How He Turned the Trick.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 23.—H. N. Mathis, former cashier and bookkeeper of the Cannon-Byers Millinery company, arrested accused of stealing $2,800 of the company's funds, waived examination in the police court and was held to the grand jury for Jan. 26.

Manager Yenwine stated that Mathis, who is a prominent churchman, admitted his peculations two weeks ago, and that he supposed the thefts would amount to as much as $4,000.

It was further stated that Mathis used an adding machine to help him in his defalcation by holding up the roller of the machine, registering the amount of his theft on the keys and then letting the roller down again to show the total. This addition he then submitted to the management.

BARNES BACK IN THE SADDLE ONCE MORE

New York Republicans Select Roosevelt's Bitter Foe.

New York, Jan. 23.—The Republican state committee, in secret session at the Republican club in West Fortieth street, elected William Barnes, jr., of Albany, the bitterest foe of Colonel Roosevelt in the recent party dissension, to the state chairmanship, to succeed Ezra P. Prentice, the representative of the Roosevelt forces, for whom Timothy L. Woodruff was ousted.

The victory of the old guard in putting the Barnes-Woodruff faction back in control was spoken of to show how utterly Colonel Roosevelt's grip upon the party has been broken.

All the proceedings took place behind closed doors. Mr. Barnes, who had waited downstairs while this took place, then came up to the ninth floor, where the meeting was in session. As he entered the room he remarked, smilingly, to the reporters outside:

"Well, I've come back!"

Committee Favors Peary.

Washington, Jan. 23.—That Captain Robert E. Modern Life Would Be Too Hard on the Nerves If It Were Not For Want Advertising

The pace of life has become tense.

Worries, disappointments, up-sets at home and office, losses, discouragements seem to multiply as daily life becomes more complex.

The property owner, who MUST have a steady income from rents or lose his property, is "racked" by the untimely defection of a tenant. Some classified advertising quickly retrieves his loss—and quiets his nerves!

The salary-earner unexpectedly loses his position—and his peace-of-mind. The strain would shortly "break" something in his nervous system, if, once more, want advertising did not find the better job—and restore him his mental equilibrium.

In every phase of the city's life, every day, the Want Ads play the part of the peace-maker. They SERVE you and me at some crisis in our lives—and keep the modern pace and tension from proving too fast and tight for US.

Truly, the Want Ads ARE FOR SERVICE!

Mercer county in Illinois has a new source of worry. One farmer in the county has drawn $2,800 from the county treasury as county on ground hog scalps. The fear now is that Mercer county is so destitute of ground hogs that when February 2 comes along it will be impossible for the residents to tell whether winter is over or not.

The honest way to prevent an increase in the membership of the house of representatives, suggests the Marion Chronicle, is to apply the constitutional remedy for wholesale disfranchisement in several southern States and prevent ne vote in Mississippi or South Carolina from being equal to five votes in Indiana. But the only way of preventing an increase in the size of the house that occurs to Representatives Barnhart, Rauch and Moss of this State, is to permit this sort of discrimination against Indiana to go on and sacrifice one congressman and electoral vote to southern sectionalism. It's a pretty poor sort of Hoosier who has not enough pride in his State to stand up for it when its interests are at stake.

Tuberculosis Costs Millions Each Year

Secretary of State Board of Health Gives Statistics Showing Annual Ravages.

WHITE PLAGUE IN INDIANA

That the prevention of tuberculosis is not a fad, but a straight business proposition confronting the taxpayers of the state, was the declaration recently made by Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the State Board of Health. He wound up a trip throughout Indiana during which he visited more than a score of cities, and his work was along the line of organizing Anti-Tuberculosis societies.

Dr. Hurty is deeply interested in the efforts to prevent the spread of tuberculosis in Muncie, and surrounding territory through the organization of a local Anti-Tuberculosis association. "The total cost annually of consumption in the state is estimated at $10,000,000," stated Dr. Hurty. "In two generations this can be totally wiped out, but it cannot be accomplished other than by the campaign of education and organized efforts now taking place. The state board has distributed 100,000 pamphlets throughout the state, in which efforts are made to educate and instruct the people on the best known methods to prevent the disease and teachers in the public school are educating their pupils along hygiene lines which will prove a big factor

Wants to Know About That Accounting Board

We are most of us at a loss to know some things which seem very difficult about the State Board of Accounts, says the Richmond Palladium. It is not alone the story, that is well-founded, that Mr. Dehority, the chief examiner, was unable to report to the legislative committee in the complete way in which every other institution in the State did. That is a matter for the Legislature to look into. But there is one thing that Wayne county people want to know about, and know quickly. They want to know whether the report going around the State, accredited to the State Board of Accounts, that there were shortages amounting to $6,219.82 in the books of the officials of this county is true or not. The rest of the report says that $756.65 is "recovered" to the county.

No one in Wayne County knows how to account for this. The errors in bookkeeping of minor importance which were found in the books of officials in this county do not tally with these figures, being only a few hundred dollars. What does this mean? The State Board of Accounts has some other very ugly coincidences hanging around it. During the last campaign it was noticeable that the reports made public were almost entirely Republican. It was a more effective institution than the Democratic campaign bureau. Indianapolis newspaper men on the State House run know that reports have been held up.

These things have simply been at the beck and call of Mr. Dehority. The two deputies—one of them a Republican and the other a Democrat—had very little to do with this, it was a one man power. The intent of the law in creating this board ought to have been a nonpartisan affair. And even if the law did not specify this it is certainly up to Mr. Dehority to take the full responsibility for the office. We hope that all this will come before the Legislature.

The idea of the institution is a good one; uniform accounting is a good thing if it is not simply made an excuse for bookbinders' and printers' sinecures. If the law is at fault—change it. If Dehority is at fault we hope that Governor Marshall will remove him. It is our opinion that both are at fault. A good law and a nonpartisan board of accounts and a sensible system of uniform accounts are all right—we want them. But such libels as emanated from the State Board of Accounts—witness the Wayne county story—are damnable outrages.

ERRORS IN WILLS.

Two Famous Lawyers Whose Testaments Were Defective.

TILDEN'S CURIOUS BLUNDER.

Loosely Drawn Stipulations That Invalidated His Charitable Trust Bequest—President Polk's Will, Written by Himself, Nullified.

Whether the old saying that "a lawyer who tries his own case has a fool for a client" is applicable to Samuel J. Tilden in the matter of drawing his will is not known. It was thought for some time that the will was drawn, or at least approved, by Charles O'Connor and James C. Carter, two of the most eminent lawyers in New York, but later statements, says Case and Comment, are to the effect that they had nothing at all to do with the will, and consequently it is not definitely known who was responsible for it.

It would hardly seem possible that Mr. Tilden himself could have made such a mistake had he been acting for some one else. The statement has been made that Mr. Tilden had some doubts as to the validity of those clauses which the court subsequently condemned and had spoken to Mr. Carter about it, but nothing more came of it.

In summing up the provisions of the Tilden will the court in holding it invalid stated that the testator in substance said: "I have determined to devote my estate to charitable, educational and scientific purposes. I have formed no detailed plan how that purpose can be executed, but under the law of New York it must be done through and by means of a corporation. I request you to cause to be incorporated an institution to be called the 'Tilden trust,' with capacity to maintain a free library and reading room in the city of New York, and such other educational and scientific objects as you shall designate, and if you deem it expedient—that is, if you think it advisable and the fit and proper thing to do—convey to that institution all or such part of my residuary estate as you choose, and if you do not think that course advisable then apply it to such charitable, educational and scientific purposes as in your judgment will most substantially benefit mankind."

It will be noted that the discretion of the trustees was indefinite both as to the amount which they were to give to the corporation to be formed and also as to whether they should give any at all to the incorporation, and the validity of the bequest was denied upon the ground of this complete discretionary power to convey or not to convey to the suggested beneficiary.

The trustees procured the incorporation of the "Tilden trust" and elected to convey to it the entire property, but the court held that the invalidity of the charitable trust because of its uncertainty could not be cured by anything done by the trustees to execute it.

In striking contrast with the Tilden will is that of his contemporary in law and politics, Roscoe Conkling, the text of which is as follows: "I, Roscoe Conkling of Utica, make, publish and declare my last will and testament as follows: I give, devise and bequeath to my wife Julia and to her heirs and assigns forever all my property and estate, whether real or mixed, and I constitute and appoint my said wife sole executrix of this my last will." It would undoubtedly take a better lawyer than even Mr. Conkling to break his will.

In passing upon the validity of the will of President James K. Polk a Tennessee court of chancery said: "This will was written by the testator with his own hand in the executive mansion at Washington at a time when he was president of the United States. He was a lawyer of recognized ability, had filled many high public offices with distinction and reflected great honor upon his state. His will was witnessed by a law partner and a senator in congress and named as executor one of the justices of the supreme court of the United States. It comes to us with the impression of having been carefully thought out before it was formally put down and published as his last testament."

Among other provisions his home, known as Polk Place, situated in the city of Nashville, was given to his wife for life, and upon her death it was bequeathed to the state of Tennessee in trust to be occupied and enjoyed "by such one of my blood relatives having the name of Polk as may be designated by the said state," and if there were no blood relatives of that name then "by such other of my blood relations as may be designated by the said state to execute this trust."

The occupant was to keep the same in repair and prevent it from dilapidating or falling into decay, to pay the taxes and to preserve and keep in repair "the tomb which may be placed or erected over the mortal remains of my beloved wife and myself and shall not permit the same to be removed nor any buildings or other improvements be placed or erected over the spot where said tomb may be."

This will was declared invalid as tending to establish a perpetuity. It was not a gift for public charity and was merely an attempt to retain the property for the use of the blood relatives of the testator.

How easy it is for one to suggest a sure way for some one else to manage a troublesome affair!

HENRY WOULD REMAIN SINGLE

Does Not Seek Judicial Matrimonial

Alliance With Adjoining County of Rush.

COMMITTEE WAS THERE ALSO

Investigation Showing Volume of Business in Their Court Came as Big Surprise.

Henry county does not want to be linked with another county as a judicial circuit. The efforts of Shelby county to become a circuit in itself is not objected to, but the proposal to link Rush county, which is now a part of the judicial circuit with Shelby county, to Henry county, is the last thing desired here, says the New Castle Times. Not that Henry county has anything against the neighbor on the south, but this county, has troubles of its own and enough to attend to without taking up the affairs of another county in addition. The Henry circuit now, and for the past few years, has had all it could attend to, and the business grows heavier each year.

There is not a term of court but that a number of cases are carried over and at the present time there are close to two hundred cases awaiting disposition. The Henry circuit court does not loaf, as may be the case in other counties, as the business is such that there is not time to loaf, and vacation is short, one term following close upon the heels of another.

A committee from the legislature was here Thursday investigating conditions in this county, probably with a view to ascertaining if this county could be joined in a judicial circuit with another. And the members of the committee were surprised to learn the amount of business that this court has each term. Deputy Clerk Shultz, who handles the clerk end of the clerk's office, informed the committee of how the business was and gave them all the information they wanted. It was made plain to the committee that the county has all it can attend to of its own affairs and the members were convinced that such was the case. For this reason it is not expected that any action will be taken linking Henry with any other county.

Each year the business of the circuit court gets heavier, and the present term is the heaviest that Judge Jackson has experienced. Many cases have been disposed of and there are still many pending, with new cases being filed every day. Saturday was the 42d judicial day of the December term and of the 42 days court has been held on 41. It is doubtful if any of the larger counties of the State can show such a record or the volume of business.

Judge Jackson and all of the court attaches are opposed to any change in present conditions, as they have all they can attend to at the present time at home. The addition of another county would increase business to such an extent as to cause a congestion and greatly handicap the prompt hearing and disposal of cases and quick action when needed. Henry county has every respect for her neighbor, Rush county, but does not want her as a judicial circuit partner, or any other county. Henry desires to be left alone.

SLEEPING SICKNESS.

The Grip This Dreadful Disease Takes Upon Its Victims.

The course of the dreadful disease, sleeping sickness, is an extremely slow one. The first stage is said to last a year or more, and the cause of the disease may be in the blood long before any symptoms whatever present themselves. The patient has occasional fever; indeed, a disease hitherto called Gambia fever has recently been recognized as the first stage of sleeping sickness. It is said that the swelling of the lymphatic glands of the neck is a characteristic early symptom. This was known in 1893 to Dr. Winterbottom, who states that slave traders, recognizing the symptom of a fatal disease, would not buy slaves who had this glandular enlargement. The patient feels well and strong and is able to go about his usual occupations.

The second stage is indicated by a distinct change in the appearance of the patient. His expression grows heavy and dull; he becomes apathetic, lies around a great deal and cannot exert himself. With the progress of the disease these symptoms become more marked; walking and speech become difficult and finally impossible. During the last week the sufferer lies in a state of complete coma, from which the illness derives its name. Often during the second stage of the disease the brain becomes affected, and some of the patients try to run away into the forests or swamps, where they die of exposure or starvation. To prevent this the relatives of a sufferer frequently chain him down until the time comes when he can no longer move.—McClure's Magazine.

Some Famous Men of Old.

The "nine worthies" were Joshua, David, Judas Maccabeus, Hector of Troy, Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar, King Arthur of Britain, Charlemagne of France and Godfrey of Bouillon. The list varies somewhat, but this is the most popular one. The "seven wise men of Greece" were Solon, Thales, Pittacus, Bias, Cleobolus, Myson and Chellon of Sparta. The supposition is, of course, that these were not the only wise men in Greece, but the wisest.—New York American.

WHAT SPENDING $100.00 MEANS.

Have you ever stopped to consider seriously the earning power of money?

Do you realize that whenever you spend money foolishly you are not only losing this actual cash in hand, but also the interest that the money might earn for you as long as you live.

For example, suppose you have saved $100.00. You can put this money into the Bank or you can spend it.

Whether you spend it wisely or not you will lose more than $3.00 every year for life, for that is what $100.00 would earn at 3 per cent interest in The Rush County National Bank.

If your expenditure of the $100.00 is a wise and necessary one, it is probably worth $3.00 a year even if you live for 50 years longer, but if you are planning to spend that $100.00 foolishly, our advice to you is don't, but just put it into this Bank and let the 3 per cent compound interest double or treble your capital.

BUILD BRIDGE AS TRAINS MOVE

Chicago Construction Company Completes Remarkable Feat Erecting Structure Over Flatrock.

ONLY ONE TRAIN IS DELAYED

Bridge is 320 Feet Long, 84 Feet From River Bed—Composed of Four 80-Foot Spans.

The Kelly-Atkinson Construction company, has completed a remarkable feat in the building of a new bridge over Flatrock river near St. Paul for the New York Central lines with the delay of only one train, and that for less than an hour. The old bridge, which was removed by the hoists was condemned several years ago. The bridge is 320 feet long, eighty-four feet from the bed of the river and composed of four eighty-foot spans. Each of the eight new girders is eighty feet long, nine feet high and weighs fifty thousand pounds.

The method used by the construction company was novel. Placing a hoisting engine at each end of the bridge, the crew set to work removing the rails from one span. The ties were then dumped into the river, the cross bars of the old bridge removed and the hoisting machines run up to the opening and anchored. The new girders, which had previously been lowered to the stone piers at each side, were then raised over the old girders and lowered on the inside into their permanent positions. The time consumed in placing each girder was three minutes and sixteen seconds. The ties and rails were then replaced and traffic resumed. The next morning another girder was placed and this was continued until the job was finished.

Notwithstanding the fact that the old bridge was used daily by many pedestrians, only two people were killed on it and one of these was a case of suicide. Several years ago an eccentric fellow, commonly known as deaf Andy, leaped to his death from the west end of the bridge, and about two years ago a tramp was caught near the center of the bridge by a fast train and hurled to the rocky bottom, killing him instantly.

The bridge near is that of the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction company, which is built on an incline diagonally across the river and is said to be the only one of its kind in the State.

AMUSEMENTS

The Vaudet will show the usual two reel of pictures for tonight. The first is an Itala film, "The Vestal." This one is said to be a powerful drama. The second picture is a Bison, "The Red Girl's Friendship." A new song will be sung.

The Edison film that the Palace has for tonight was released January 3. It is entitled "In the Days of Chivalry," and is the story of the rescue of a beautiful captive maiden. The acting is said to be dignified and brilliantly spirited. A new illustrated song will be sung.

The Star Grand will present one of those fine Reliance films tonight entitled "As the Master Orders," played by the all-star stock company with magnificent costumes, elaborate settings, dazzling mansion interior, the pathetic court room scene, a dramatic triumph with intense situations. Earl Robertson will sing "I Don't Believe You." And in addition to the regular program the management will present Messrs. Howard and Gregory, the singing, dancing and talking comedians. Mr. Howard is better known here as Jack Surate.

POTATOES GET BETTER PRICE

Market Receives Big Shipment and Another Decline is Expected in a Few Days.

WERE VERY CHEAP LAST FALL

The home grown potatoes moved faster last week than they have at any time since they were taken out of the ground and notwithstanding this the price has advanced thirteen to fifteen cents. A week to ten days ago "spuds" were only bringing thirty cents a bushel but one Rushville firm is now offering forty-three cents and has paid one farmer who brought a load of exceptionally good potatoes to market Friday forty-five cents. The crop for the last two years has been good in Rush county, but there were several hundred acres more land devoted to the cultivation of potatoes than for several years and the supply and inferior grade cut heavy into the price they have brought.

The movement of potatoes all over the country has been very heavy last week and commissioners say that the price will drop as a result and that it is doubtful if it will be much higher than at present. The home grown potatoes are not bringing the price as a rule that the potatoes which are being shipped in are bringing. This is due to the fact that the foreign "spuds" are of better quality.

A few days after new potatoes first came on the market last fall they dropped as low as twenty-five cents a bushel and a number of farmers fed them to the hogs rather than haul them to town at that price.

JIMMY VALENTINE, WARDEN HANDLER AND ROSE LANE.

Rose drew a deep breath and gazed adoringly at Jimmy Valentine.

"Oh, uncle," she cried, "isn't he a perfectly dear safe breaker?"

When Jimmy Valentine recovered from the effect of Rose Lane's flattering description of him and felt that he could look the lieutenant governor in the face without the twitch of a single muscle he asked his questioner if there was anything further that he cared to know.

"Yes," responded Fay. "I appreciate any thought you may have had for the young lady, my niece. But as you did not know her, had never before met her and could therefore have had little or no interest in her, I do not see how any thought of her would have influenced your actions. What think you, Mr. Valentine?"

No, 1289 was temporarily nonplused by the penetrating perception and cold analysis of the lieutenant governor, who was questioning him as though he was on trial for his life, with Fay as the cross examiner.

"I mean," began Valentine—"I mean they would have convicted me of murder on her testimony very probably—at least that is what I feared if they knew about her and got hold of her as a witness against me. I did not believe they could convict me on the burglary charge."

Rose Lane's enthusiasm began to cool as she heard her hero in his explanation hint that, after all, there might have been some other motive than thought of and for her in his refusal to drag her into a vulgar, sordid murder case. She was not experienced enough to realize that Jimmy Valentine had to satisfy the keen, searching, though withal kind hearted lieutenant governor, whose questions suggested a doubt of the convict's innocence. But the faith of the girl was not entirely shaken. She knew that this unfortunate young man would surely straighten out everything in the end. How could any one with so gracious and winning a smile and with such adorable eyes ever have committed a crime greater than the pillage of his grandmother's jam closet? Yes, he was the victim of some strangely terrible plot, of heinous machinations like those of the French revolution or of the Spanish inquisition.

The lieutenant governor continued to press Valentine.

"But once convicted," he went on, "it seems to me that you would have made an application for a new trial."

"My lawyer is working on that now, sir."

Rose Lane pressed her uncle's hand and looked pleadingly at the state official as though supplicating his further aid for the prisoner. The lieutenant governor was responsive to the fair young girl's influence, and after a pause he spoke the words that were to fill with a new hope the tortured soul of Jimmy Valentine.

"Tell your lawyer to apply for a pardon. I promise you he shall have every possible assistance in his effort to secure it."

MODERN HAIR DRESSING

Has played havoc with the tresses of the fair sex, and druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making the old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair and restoring its natural color. The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact, and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations. This preparation, which is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

Their active principal is a recent scientific discovery that odorless, colorless and tasteless; very pronounced, gentle and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. This ingredient does not cause diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence, griping or any inconvenience whatever. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember you can get them in Rochester only at our store, 12 tablets 10 cents; 36 tablets 25 cents.—The Rexall Store. Thos. W. Lytle.

went out into the waiting room.

"Finished your star chamber session, governor?" he asked sneeringly.

"Mr. Handler," sternly, "let me say something to you for your own benefit. You are an employee of the state. Employees have been removed, even wardens, for a speech no more dis courteous than the one you have just made. When Valentine gets out—and I hope it will be soon—I am going to ask him how he was treated, and if he tells me you treated him any worse after today than before I came I promise you a little polite h—l. Good day, sir."

The lieutenant governor followed Rose.

Smith had come in with the warden. The latter turned to his secretary as Fay departed and snarled viciously, his teeth protruding like yellow fangs. "Valentine, eh? Get him!" Smith, his face gravely set, obediently went out of the room.

CHAPTER V.

AS his secretary left the room to procure Valentine Warden Handler glowered darkly at the door that closed behind him and through which No. 1289 was to be unwillingly brought. He would show this man who had dared to talk to the lieutenant governor that Billy Handler was the boss of Sing Sing prison and no one else, even lieutenant governors to the contrary. Discipline must be preserved. Yes, that was it—the old explanation that always held good when a prisoner who offended the warden in any way was meted out the vengeance that the warden would not be denied. Once there was a thin chested, cough racked little election inspector "doing three" for crooked work at the polls who had had his front teeth kicked down his throat because he would not shine the warden's shoes. As for this slick Mr. Valentine, he was altogether too independent, too, and the warden would give him the lesson of his life. He would—

The door opened, and in came Smith, holding Jimmy Valentine by the arm. The warden stood at his desk. "Bring him over here!" he cried hoarsely, pointing to the space in front of his desk.

The secretary slipped his hand up behind the prisoner's neck and with a violent heave flung Valentine forward so that he was barely able to prevent himself from falling flat on his face. Gritting his teeth, No. 1289 straightened himself and finally succeeded in suppressing the impulse that surged within him to spring at his cowardly assailant's throat. Probably it was the realization of the fact that he knew himself to be more than an equal for Smith in a hand to hand conflict that enabled him to restrain himself—the contempt of a strong, confident man for an ignoble inferior.

Smith was larger and heavier, yes, but the man who had hip locked the burglar Cotton and had thrown him headlong to his death from the window of a rushing railway train was not one to be trifled with. Besides, no less a personage than George Bothner, the world's lightweight wrestling champion, had taught Valentine the mysteries of the "grapevine," the "cross buttock," the "Cornwall heave," the "flying mare," the "back heel," the rib crushing "scissors," the waist and crotch holds and even the tortures of the deadly strangle holds, front and rear.

Handler bent over his desk, resting both his hands upon it, and sneered at Valentine.

"Why didn't you smash him when he bit you, you coward?" he asked the helpless prisoner in purposely aggravating tones. "You're losing your nerve in this little boarding house of mine; that's what's the matter with you. You haven't any manhood left in you. And, say, Valentine, when we have had you here as our guest two years more you'll be whining around like a puppy with the pink eye; that's what you're coming to. It's bound to get you—this life—just like it gets all the rest of you thin skinned guys. Only a bum can live this life and keep his mind and his manhood."

The cruel words of the warden sank deeply into Valentine's soul, as Handler well knew they would. But the prisoner was determined that he would show no signs of weakening before the two men who hated him.

"I didn't hit him because I'll square myself when I get out," answered Valentine defiantly, "and there are a few little things that I will square with you, too, Mr. Warden Handler. You know you have me in your power, and so do I. But, Handler, you're going to like me better from now on because, realizing my position, I have dared go against you."

But Valentine had mistaken his man. The respect that one fighting man has for another who fights him squarely found no place in the craven heart of Billy Handler. Valentine had yet something to learn of the psychology of jail wardens. Handler's face took on a malignant expression.

"Oh," he sneered, "so I'm going to like you, am I? Well, just watch me. I'll burke you, you!"

Handler lunged around the corner of his desk at the prisoner.

"Don't burke me!" cried Valentine desperately.

Eyes gleaming with his vengeance, with hands outstretched, the warden came headlong at Valentine, who braced himself to withstand the shock of the oncoming body. Crouching, the prisoner primed himself to clutch one of the warden's thumbs, which was carelessly extended outward from his hand—a trick Bothner had shown him. Once securing this thumb, it could be pulled back or twisted to the breaking point if necessary to cause an opponent to yield, or by drawing the outstretched arm over his shoulder, wheeling his back to his foe as he did so, Valentine could bend sharply forward and throw his assailant helplessly over his head and on to the floor in a heap with the disconcerting "flying mare."

But midway in his rush the warden stopped short. He had caught himself just in time. About to throw himself blindly at his intended victim, a thought (an inspiration he afterward considered it to be) flashed through his brain. The warden halted, much to the amazement of his secretary, Smith, who had been watching the proceedings with unconcern born of experience in like happenings. Then Handler turned away, rested one hand on his desk and with the other stroked his heavy, square chin reflectively.

"God!" he pondered. "Suppose the lieutenant governor should get on to those deals in the contracts for supplies? He might, and then I'd need him to be my friend."

Handler reached out, picked up a box from the desk and extended it to the too thoroughly thunderstruck convict, who was slowly recovering from the mental strain of the last few moments.

"Have a cigar," smiled the warden graciously, with a sweeping bow. "Also permit me to offer you a chair, Mr. Valentine."

"By the way," he went on easily, "are you perfectly comfortable in your cell? If not, I want to know what I can do for you. I'm going to have Smith go to see you every day to do for you anything that you want, provided the rules of the prison permit, and maybe some things they don't."

Valentine, hardly believing what his eyes and ears told him actually to be occurring, dropped bewilderedly into the proffered chair and, taking a gift banded Havana from the box, stuck it eagerly between his lips.

"Have a light," said the warden, striking a match and extending it to the end of Valentine's cigar.

The secretary stood across the room near a door, eyes staring in his wonder as No. 1289 leaned back luxuriously in his chair, crossed one striped leg over the other and sent fragrant clouds of blue smoke toward the ceiling.

"This'll be a regular Y. M. C. A. before we get through," he gasped. "I think I'll apply for a job as worsted holder for some old maids' sewing society. This prison is getting altogether too genteel to suit me."

OVERTAXED

Hundreds of Rushville Readers Know What it Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed; Have too much to do. They tell about it in many aches and pains—

Backache, sideache, headache. Early symptoms of kidney ills. Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

A Rushville citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well.

Mason Maxey, 836 West Third street, Rushville, Ind., says: "I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are a kidney remedy of great merit and I therefore hold them in high esteem."

When I procured my first box of Doan's Kidney Pills at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s Drug Store three years ago. I was badly in need of a remedy that would relieve me of the pain in my back. I found Doan's Kidney Pills to be a reliable preparation for that purpose and by the time I had finished the contents of two boxes, the pain had disappeared. I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills at that time and the elapse of three years has not changed my opinion of them. I willingly confirm all I have said in my original statement."

COLOR AND SOUND.

Hues That Are Unseen and Tones That Are Unheard.

The primary colors shown in the rainbow vary from red to blue and violet, and the vibrations or lengths of the light waves that give us violet grow shorter and shorter and at length give us red. These vibrations can be measured. One day, quite by chance, I came across the statement that there were innumerable light waves longer than those which give violet. At once the question sprang. Were these longer waves represented by colors which we don't see, colors for which we have no conception? And was the same thing true of the waves which, growing shorter and shorter, give us the sensation of red? There is room, of course, for myriads of colors beyond this other extremity of our vision. A little study convinced me that my guess was right, for all the colors which we see are represented to our sense of feeling in degrees of heat; that is, blue shows one reading on the thermometer and red a higher reading, and by means of this new standard I discovered that man's range of vision is not even placed in the middle of the register of heat, but occupies a little space far up toward the warmer extremity of it. There are thousands of degrees of cold lower than blue and hundreds of degrees of heat above red. All these gradations are doubtless represented by colors which no human eye can perceive, no human mind imagine. It is with sight as with sound. We know now that there are noises louder than thunder which we cannot hear, the roar that lies on the other side of silence. We men are poor restless prisoners, named in by our senses as by the walls of a cell, hearing only a part of nature's orchestra and that part imperfectly; seeing only a thousandth part of the color marvels about us and seeing that infinitesimal part incorrectly and partially.—Forum.

A Greater Attraction.

Herr Harden told of a meeting at Gasten between William I. and Francis Joseph. The Austrian sovereign commented impatiently on the too pressing attentions of the crowd. "It won't last long," returned his ally soothingly. "Bismarck will be here directly, and then no one will look at us."—London Spectator.

COREA TO PROFIT BY WEEK OF SELFDENIAL

American Methodists to Turn Abstinence into Cash.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Methodist Episcopal ministers of Chicago have joined to aid, by self-denial, in the raising of $300,000 as a quarter centennial jubilee fund for Korean missions. A week of abstinence soon is to be set. By cutting out one meal a day, by eating round steak instead of the choicer cuts of beef, by walking instead of riding, and by eliminating luxuries at every turn, the 210 pastors of Chicago and vicinity will cash the results of sacrifice.

The Rev. Fred H. Sheets is the organizer of the movement for Chicago. "I have been practicing this regime of self-denial for some time," he said, "and the missionary office has received word from 3,000 Methodist ministers who have promised to present the cause of Korea to the people of their congregations and to encourage them to a week of self-denial in order that they may bring in on the following Sunday an offering in cash and not of simple promises for the future."

OUR GOOD OFFICES

Washington, Jan. 23.—Secretary of State Knox has sent instructions to the American ministers at Santo Domingo and at Port au Prince, directing them to use the good offices of the United States for the purpose of bringing about an honorable settlement of the boundary dispute between Haiti and Santo Domingo, which has threatened to precipitate a war. The dispute arose several weeks ago over the construction of a highway by Santo Domingo on territory claimed by Haiti. Both governments have mobilized troops on the border in preparation for hostilities. Saturday the president of Haiti asked that Secretary Knox use his friendly offices to adjust the trouble.

Marshall Won Reward.

Huntington, W. Va., Jan. 23.—A suspect giving his name as "Sam Hill," arrested at Ceredo a few days ago, has been identified by Sheriff Bowlin of Whiteley county, Kentucky, as Edward Beam, wanted for the murder of Sheriff J. C. Bryan, in Whiteley county, more than a year ago. A reward of $400 was offered for the capture of Beam, and was paid to Marshal Webb of Ceredo.

Charged With Robbery.

Milwaukee, Jan. 23.—In the arrest here of Joseph Grabus, aged twenty-three, the police believe they have the third of a gang of holdup men wanted in Joliet for many robberies. Two have been captured in Illinois. The specific offense charged against Grabus is participation in the robbery of an elevator watchman of $290.

A sprained ankle will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. This is due to lack of proper treatment. THREE HUNDRED SLAIN IN BATTLE

Fierce Fighting At Galeana, South of Grandes.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN KILLED

Federal Forces Fire Into the Homes of Insurgent Citizens Non-Combatants Falling With Others in What is Described as a Veritable Slaughter
—The Government Continues to Rush Troops to the North.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 23.—Fighting continues at Galeana, south of Casas Grandes, and runners have brought the news that among the dead were many women and children killed in their homes as the federals fired on the insurgents in the houses. Reports say that the dead and wounded will total 300. Casas Grandes is still in the hands of the federals, but the inhabitants are not certain how long it will be held. It is said that the rebels are attempting to take all towns along the El Paso Northwestern road south of here, and hold the line in order to use it to take supplies to their troops from El Paso.

Juarez, opposite El Paso, according to these statements, is to be taken.
As indicating that the Mexican government places credence in these reports it has sent another hundred cavalrymen to Juarez from Chihuahua.
Fiscal guards in Juarez reported that 200 revolutionists crossed the Rio Grande at Guadalupe east of El Paso, going south.

Reports from Guerrero and Ojinaga show the federals in as serious condition there as at Galeana. Navarro is completely cut off from Chihuahua and the rebels boast that their retreat from Guerrero was to draw him further away from his base of supplies and then annihilate his command. He has been cut for a week and the rebels are attacking his commands in all the smaller towns around Guerrero and Temosahuc, assisted in their attacks by the Tarahumara Indians.

At Ojinaga General Luque has had to send out all the troops he can spare to reinforce the small garrisons he placed in the smaller towns, and is now said to be surrounded himself by rebels at Ojinaga. The loss among the federals around Ojinaga is known to have been heavy of late.

TAKING NO CHANCES

This Government Interferes With the Progress of the Hornet.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The capture of the gunboat Hornet has been reported to the navy department by Commander George F. Cooper of the gunboat Marietta. Commander Cooper's dispatch says that it had been found absolutely necessary to place on board a force of men from the cruiser Tacoma in order to detain the Hornet.
The detention of the Hornet was requested by Secretary of State Knox several days ago, pending a decision by Attorney General Wickersham as to whether the Hornet violated the neutrality of the United States before she sailed from New Orleans several weeks ago.

Before her departure her cargo was inspected and no evidence was found by federal officers that in their opinion would warrant in detaining her.
Upon arriving on the north coast of Honduras however, she was fully armed, and the fact that she was engaged in a warlike expedition was not concealed. The capture of the Hornet will undoubtedly interfere with the plans of the revolutionary leaders, who intend to use her in their movement against President Davila of Honduras.

Fain, upon the finding of a grand jury indictment charging him with the murder of Jessie Wilson Bailey in a resort conducted by the girl's mother, on Jan.

shot him and then killed herself. The coroner's verdict and the conclusion of the grand jury are that Fain killed the woman and then attempted suicide.

INSURGENTS FIRM AGAINST CAUCUS

Sheehan Opponents Seem to Control Situation.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 23.—With the fifth ballot for United States senator today showing no appreciable change, Senator Franklin D. Roosevelt of Dutchess, leader of the insurgents against Sheehan, said that there was no change in the situation as far as the insurgents were concerned. Asked if the insurgents felt like staying out all winter, he said: "We fully understand that the tail can't wag the dog.
We are willing to go into a conference of all hands, where everybody will have a fair chance to discuss candidates, but we oppose the caucus principle. We have repeatedly stated that fact, and we intend to abide by it. If anybody wants to arrange a conference where all hands can get together and discuss the situation, all right.
We are for that. If they do not want to have a conference formal or informal, let's have a smoker, anything but a caucus, where we can talk this matter over calmly and freely. This, of course with Mr. Sheehan's name eliminated."

"You would not go into a conference, then, with Mr. Sheehan's name still in the race," was suggested.
"Of course not. It must be conceded now that Sheehan cannot be elected. But we know we cannot elect a United States senator without the majority of the Democrats in the legislature, as well as they know they can't elect Mr. Sheehan without us. So there is nothing else to do but to get together and thrash this thing out, but not by a caucus, no sir."

The organization leaders, C. F. Murphy, John H. McCoy and others, said Mr. Roosevelt's views could not be entertained. They will stick to Sheehan.

The following statement was given out by W. A. Huppuch, chairman of the Democratic state committee: "To the Democratic members of the state assembly: The caucus being a recognized usage in all parties, there should be no question of its being the duty of all assemblymen and senators elected upon the Democratic ticket to abide by its results and vote for the senatorial candidate of the majority.
Most assuredly should either of the other candidates voted for at the caucus have got a majority of votes their followers would undoubtedly have insisted on their undivided support."

A DIVIDED VOTE ON OPTION BILL

Indiana Measure Not a Strict Party Measure.

FALLING OFF ON BOTH SIDES

Certain Democrats in the Hoosier Assembly Will Not Stand For Their Party Platform Measure, but on the Other Hand Certain Republicans Are Favorable to It So It Will Be About a Stand-Off.

Indianapolis, Jan. 23.—Democratic leaders of the house and senate have about agreed to let the senate take the initiative in passing the Proctor bill, amending the county local option law with the units contemplated in the Democratic state platform. The plan proposed is that the senate bill shall be the bill passed, the Keeney bill in the house being held back until the senate bill is passed in both branches.
The Keeney bill contains the same provisions as the Proctor bill.

The Proctor bill will come up in the senate today for second reading, according to Senator Proctor. The house bill will remain on the speaker's desk.
The senate bill is expected to go to engrossment this afternoon and will be handed down on third reading for passage Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday morning. A motion may be made to have the bill made a special order of business some time during the week, in all probability, although Senator Proctor is desirous of passing it Tuesday afternoon if possible. The senator from Elkhart says that the minority members of the senate will be allowed two hours in which to debate the bill. The majority will consume that much time, if not more.

Senator Tilden of Marion, Putnam and Morgan counties and Senator Mc-Carthy of Clinton county will not vote with their Democratic colleagues for a change in the existing local option law. Senator Durre of Vanderburg county will vote with the Democrats, although a Republican. He never has supported the county option law and he will not do so now. Senator Hibberd of St. Joseph county, although a Republican, may vote with the Democrats.

Outlook in the House.

It is expected that the bill will get to the house of representatives Wednesday afternoon or some time Thursday. It will be referred to the committee on public morals, of which Representative Seidensticker is chairman, and will be reported for passage just as soon as the committee can give it the necessary consideration. It is likely that the report for passage will be signed only by the Democratic members, as was the case in the report for the passage of the Keeney bill, made to the house last Friday. It is not likely that the bill will pass the house before one week from today. It will be signed by Governor Marshall in all probability some time during the latter part of next week.

The Democrats in the house are claiming the votes of Representatives
Greiger, Wider, Grimmer, Van Horn,
Clark and Ross for the bill. They concede that Representatives Merriman, Clare and Higgins, Democrats, will vote with the Republicans to stand by the county unit. If the Democrats lose three Democratic and gain six Republican votes they will have sixty-three votes in favor of the bill, whereas the Republicans will have thirty-seven votes against it. If the Democrats in the senate lose Tilden and McCarthy and gain Durre and Hibberd, they will still have thirty votes for the bill and the minority will have twenty votes against it. The bill is certain of passage in both houses.

Two other platform measures will be considered during the week in addition to the local option measure. Senator Proctor, Democratic caucus chairman in the senate, expects to call a caucus probably on Tuesday to discuss the registration and primary election bills now before the upper house. The question as to whether the Democrats of the senate shall line up solidly for the Fleming-Seidensticker high license, restrictive and regulative measure also will be thrashed out, it is said.

Two Registration Bills.

The registration bills are now before the senate, the Clark bill and the Harlan bill. The Clark bill was introduced in the house by Representative Tingle and the Harlan bill was introduced in the lower branch by Representative Seidensticker. It is not unlikely that the Clark bill will be made the senate caucus measure on registration. The primary election bills have not yet been reported by the elections committee of the senate, but they probably will be reported by the middle of the week.

A hard fight is expected in the senate over the passage of the Shively recall bill, now out of the committee.
The bill has been amended so that most of "the sting" it is said, has been taken out of it.
There may be a divided report on the Proctor bill providing against the "watering" of stock in corporations. A hard fight is being waged on this measure. Senator Proctor expects to have the bill reported out of the corporations committee, which is now considering it some time this week.
Several more bills in line with the

PREPARES BILL TO GOVERN MORTGAGE

Representative Declares Present Exemption Law is Taken Advantage of by Speculators.

PUT MONEY OUT OVER STATE

Representative John G. Brown of Monon is preparing a bill for introduction in the house, now in session in Indianapolis, which proposes to limit the number of mortgage exemptions filed by the residents of the State. Under the present law an exemption of $700 may be filed in each county, but under the new bill only one exemption shall be used in the State. According to Mr. Brown the intention of the present law to help poor people has been taken advantage of by speculators and non-residents. When they wish to borrow money, he says, they scatter the mortgages in different counties where they hold property and thus evade paying taxes annually on several thousand dollars worth of property. The bill will provide a penalty of $25 for the violation of the terms.

While Visiting in Southern State "Dickers" For Land Tract And Digs Well.

Dr. W. E. Barnum of the little town in the western part of Rush county, known as Manilla, a practicing physician there, maintains that he has discovered a West Baden, French Lick, an Eldorado or something of the sort, only that his find is neither in this State or Missouri. It is in Florida, the home of oranges, bananas, winter resorts and fast horses. According to a Shelbyville paper, he has stepped forward and made the announcement without the blare of the trumpets or the glare of banners, that he has discovered the land of promise in Orange county, Florida. It seems strange that the Manilla physician should be the fortunate one, since explorers both great and small have traveled over the State in quest of adventure, but Dr. Barnum declares that he has found that which will make him independent.

Desiring to find a quiet health resort where he could fully enjoy himself for several weeks, Dr. Barnum hid himself away to Florida, where Juan Ponce de Leon made his triumphant entry in 1512. With no particular point in view the physician at last landed in the beautiful and thriving little city of Orlando. With his mind free from the cares and worry that infest it in his daily life at home, the tourist from Indiana sojourned there for several days. The scenes were so widely different from those surrounding his home in Indiana that he soon became infatuated with Orlando and her inhabitants. Among his newly formed acquaintances was a real estate agent. One day conversation between the two finally drifted to a point whereby the Hoosier physician became the owner of a five acre tract of land in Orange county. The purchaser made the deal just like many schoolboys trade pocketknives—without ever casting an eye on the land.

The virtues of the soil had been extolled by the agent in such a manner that the mind of Dr. Barnum had reached a high state of expectancy. Shortly after the deal was consummated he contracted with a firm to sink a deep well on his land. A few days later a stream of water was shooting seventeen feet high from the top of a well. Wishing to harden his muscles, Dr. Barnum assisted the men the first day they worked, but that was enough for him. He did not put in an appearance again until the job was completed. Imagine his surprise when he made an examination of the water flowing from the well and found that it possessed medicinal qualities of great merit.

The physician was compelled to return home shortly afterward and just what will come out of his discovery is more or less conjectural, as he is undecided as to his future plans regarding the tract. He may decide to ereet a sanitarium there as he believes a cure for many of the diseases common to mankind is contained in the water found in the well. Since the news of his discovery became current, his mail has been flooded with letters of inquiry from all sections of the country. Many persons living in the North own small tracts in the vicinity of the one owned by the Manilla physician.

Many of his friends have suggested the formation of a company for the purpose of erecting and operating a sanitarium. This suggestion will not likely be acted upon, however, as Dr. Barnum has received several fine offers for his tract and he now has them under consideration. A number of his acquaintances in Indiana have purchased land near Orlando at his solicitation and each purchaser is well satisfied with his investment.

Dr. Barnum will likely visit Florida again during the next few weeks, at which time he intends to make a more complete investigation of the opportunities that have recently presented themselves to him.

PAINFUL INJURY CAUSED FROM FALL

Mrs. John Gilliam Dislocates Right Arm Last Night at C. H. & D. Depot, When she Slipped.

WAS WAITING FOR A TRAIN

Mrs. John Gilliam met with a very painful accident last night when she slipped and in catching herself dislocated her right shoulder.

Mrs. Gilliam was at the C. H. & D. depot waiting for a train and on going from the waiting room, she slipped. While falling she threw up her arm and the weight of her body caused the arm to become dislocated. She was removed to her home in North Sexton street, where a physician was called. The injury, it is thought, while very painful, will not result seriously.

PAT TAKES TROUBLES TO THE PROSECUTOR

Says he Goes to Bed at Night But he Can Not Rest or Can Not Sleep.

HE NEEDS MEDICAL ADVICE

It's a cosmopolitan bunch that often congregates in the waiting room in connection with the prosecutor's office. Many cases come to the attention of the prosecutor, which never see the light of day, as often they are only petty quarrels that may be settled very easily without setting the law in motion. Today "Pat" Gordon was the only one present when Prosecutor Dennis O'Neil came back for his afternoon's work. He had a complaint.

"I can't rest at night. I go to bed but I can't sleep. Something's always a' botherin' me."

The casual listener would believe that he was seeking medical rather than legal advice. He was bothered at night by a nightmare or something of the sort and he sought out the representative of the State of Indiana to tell him his troubles.

The prosecutor and "Pat" were soon closeted together and the remainder of the interview is not a matter for which the public is to know. It may be gleaned from Gordon's words that his neighbors worry him, but it is probable that he will not want to file any affidavits, when he once listens to the reasoning of the prosecutor.

An exceedingly poisonous variety of centipede is found throughout China in great numbers under old buildings or old logs. The bite is extremely painful and in children sometimes fatal.
